The Chinese Club is open to all current Rutgers students and recent graduates who are interested in expanding their knowledge of Chinese language and culture. It is organized by the Confucius Institute of Rutgers University (CIU) to provide students with an informal, fun learning environment for practicing Chinese and bonding with fellow students over their shared interest in Chinese culture. Each lunchtime meeting is dedicated a particular topic and explores differences between Chinese and American culture. Members of the Chinese Club have premier access to the latest information about various cultural enrichment programs and scholarships for visiting or studying in China.

All students who have completed 101 or equivalent are welcome to join.
